

Dr. Manjusha Nair

Associate Professor and Director of Graduate Studies

Sociology

George Mason University, USA

A proud Alumna completed her BA Economics from St. Joseph's college Irinjalakuda during 1990-1993. She completed her PhD in sociology from Rutgers, the State University of New Jersey in 2011 and joined the National University of Singapore, ranked first in the Asia-Pacific, as a Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Sociology. After six years of teaching in Asia, from 2017 she joined as a Tenure Track Assistant Professor of Sociology at George Mason University at United States, which is a largest public research university in Virginia. Her award-winning book, "Undervalued Dissent: Informal Workers' Politics in India", published by SUNY Press in 2016, shows, systematically, how neoliberal globalization, mediated as market fundamentalism and right-wing politics in India, has weakened the ability of rural migrant workers to use democratic forms of contention, ranging from negotiations to strikes and social movements is a great work. Now she is working as an Associate Professor and Director of Graduate Studies Sociology, George Mason University, USA.
