

INTERNATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON WOMEN IN THE AGE OF SOCIAL MEDIA

21/01/2020

An international symposium on “Women in the Age of Social Media” was organised on 21/01/2020. Ms. Anjana Sankar, Assistant editor of Khaleej Times, Dubai, UAE was the resource person. Anjana Sankar is a UAE-based journalist chasing global stories of conflict, migration and human rights. She has reported from the frontlines of the wars in Yemen and Syria and has extensively written on the refugee crisis in Bangladesh, Iraq and Europe. From interviewing Daesh militants to embedding with the UAE army in Yemen, and covering earthquakes, floods, terrorist attacks and elections, she has come out scathe-free from the most dangerous conflict zones of the world. Riding on over 14 years of experience, Anjana currently is an Assistant Editor with Khaleej Times and leads the reporting team.

Anjana Sankar shared her experience of the untold sufferings of women in the war torn areas. She narrated the hard life of the survivors of the war zone, the women and children in the temporary shelters. She has witnessed the refugee camps and the pathos of the injured people. She narrated the war inflicted trauma among the hapless people of the war zone. Ms. Anjana Sankar talked about the new role and identity that women of our times play through the platform of Social media or the new media. She added that women should fight for the noble cause of gender justice. The application of the internet to mobile phones has led to a significant increase in the use of social media worldwide. The roles of women in the society have been influenced by the history of that country, its cultural structure, its economic strength, its political stance.
